

If the existing system—which we know is shattered— isn't going to work...then do what you can now, together, as a community to change that," she added. "And when it works, share that knowledge. Have those conversations and get people inspired and excited about trying something different. When something works, tell everybody who will listen."

Kara Udell - Capital Region Food Network Society